DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The amendment filed on 8/8/05 and the remarks presented therewith have been carefully considered. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-21 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Application Publication 2004/0150236 A1 of Hobel et al.

Re claims 1,4,5,6,11,16,22,26, Hobel et al discloses hawk or mixing palette for applying mortar, comprising: a substantially flat piece of material defining a holding surface area (1) being continuously contoured in a dished-out manner to facilitate the retention and carrying of mortar (fig 1c).

Hobel et al does not disclose the dimensions of the device. Since these dimensions are provided so that masonry tools can slide over the upper surface area without encumbrance as described in Applicant's disclosure, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to construct the dimensions of the mixing palette so that a Mason's tool could slide over the upper surface area without encumbrance to pickup mortar.

Art Unit: 3652

1. Re claim 2, including a carrying handle (3)
2. Re claim 3, the material defines a cut-out area portion to form the handle (fig 3a).
3. Re claim 7, the material includes two side edges and a bottom edge, and the holding surface area extends to the side and bottom edges of the material (fig 1a).
4. Re claim 8, including a carrying handle (3)
5. Re claim 9, the material defines a cut-out area portion to form the handle (fig 3a).
6. Re claims 10, 21 the material includes two side edges and a bottom edge, and the holding surface area is separated from the side and bottom edges of the material by a raised peripheral lip (fig. 1c)
7. Re claim 12, 23 the material includes a bottom surface that has supporting ribs (5) formed integrally with the material (figs 2a and 2b).
8. Re claim 13, the material includes a bottom surface that is configured to accommodate a support stand (see figs 4a, 4b, and 5 for palette on support stand).
9. Re claims 14,15,24,25, it is not clear what material the palette is formed from. It would be obvious to form the palette from plastic or a polymer because many polymers are low weight, inexpensive, and high in durability.
10. Re claim 17, 27 the palette is rectangular (fig 1c).
11. Re claim 18, 28 the material is configured so that the palette will nest together and they can be stacked (fig 5).
12. Re claim 19, a substantially flat piece of material defining a holding surface area (1) being continuously contoured in a dished-out manner to facilitate the retention and carrying of mortar (fig 1c), wherein the material defines a cut-out area portion to form the handle (fig 3a).

13. Re claim 20, the holding surface is substantially flat (fig 1a).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-28 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection as described above.
